Doc Apocalypse is a website/social media outlet designed to perform the most radical thing one could possibly imagine in the era of Big Brother/Nanny State Government - take care of yourself if they somehow fail to do so. The site will share information on surviving (and thriving) in difficult times by implementing knowledge gleaned from experts, by participating in real-life team building, and by using resources gathered from local communities.

Besides providing simple information on survival, we will strive to strengthen our communities through involvement in political activism, volunteering at local charities, assisting people in long-term food preparation and advising property owners in the area of safeguarding their homes and families should a worst-case scenario occur in their area.

We welcome all volunteers, as we are striving to build a community that can sustain itself should we be forced to endure a prolonged time of crisis without government assistance. We gladly consider all ideas shared in a positive manner.

Doc Apocalypse is a for-profit corporation legally operating in Washington State, but seeks to become a global community helping one another thrive through difficult times.

Our agenda is to spread information regarding preparedness and help as many people as possible to live better lives through future planning.
